Student Learning Outcomes/Objectives

- Course Outcomes

As a result of class instruction the student will be able to:

1. demonstrate knowledge of the masterpieces of American literature from the Colonial Period through American Romanticism.
2. sharpen his or her critical reading and writing skills by analyzing and interpreting specific literary works from these periods and by using primary and secondary sources.
3. demonstrate knowledge of the diverse social, philosophical, historical, cultural and political contexts of these literary works.
4. demonstrate a basic understanding of how early American traditions and thought—as reflected in the course readings—continue to influence contemporary thought.
5. demonstrate knowledge of the writing and documentation skills taught in English 1010 and 1020.

Instructional Approach and Methods

- Examinations: Essay and objective (2-3)
- Critical paper(s), 800 to 1000 words, documented, typed, corrected
- Quizzes

Assessment, Evaluation and Testing Procedures

The final grade will be derived from an evaluation of examinations, critical papers, oral reports (if any) and quizzes.

The instructor may give daily quizzes. Students cannot make up missed unannounced quizzes. Quizzes will not count more than 20% of the course grade, and at least 60% of the course grade will derive from essay writing.

C	70-79
D	60-69

Course and Class Policies/Procedures

The student must draft, revise, and submit a documented critical paper and take all scheduled exams before the final grade is recorded. The exams and the critical paper are kept on file for one semester and are not returned to the student. All students must complete the Multiple Sections Verification (MSV) Pretest and Posttest. The MSV Posttest will be given in conjunction with the final exam and count no more than 5% of the course grade.

The instructor may refuse to accept papers that are not written according to class requirements or those for which there is a question about authorship or revision.

Plagiarism, cheating, and other forms of academic dishonesty are prohibited. Students may not submit work from other classes unless permitted by the instructor. According to Webster's Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary, plagiarism is to "steal and pass off as one's own (the ideas or words of another); to present as one's own an idea or product derived from an existing source." Also, see The Little, Brown Essentials Handbook pages 151-157. Any student who plagiarizes will receive a zero on the paper and may receive a grade of F in the course. (See the Walters State Catalog/Student Handbook.)

Excessive absences may substantially lower the course grade. A late paper receives a one-letter grade deduction for each day it is late unless the student has an excused absence and notifies the instructor in advance. This rate of deduction could result in a grade value of zero if a paper were to be several days late. The instructor can require written proof of a valid excuse. Even if the absence is justifiable or administratively approved, the student must complete the paper or make arrangements to do so within one week after returning to class. After one week, if the student has not made up the paper or made satisfactory arrangements to do so with the instructor, the student receives a 0 for that theme. Furthermore, any assignment produced by or with AI software (i.e. ChatGPT) will not be accepted for a grade.

Students for whom English is a second language may contact Michelle Mitrik at 423-585-6930 for advising and/or tutoring referrals.

Additional Course Requirements/Details/Information

Attendance Policy

Since this course is an online course, submission of assignments will count as attendance.

Procedure for Submission of Work

Due dates in this course are firm.

Discussion boards lock after the deadline. It is not possible to reopen the boards after the deadline.

As noted in the English department syllabus, late assignments, i.e. the final draft of a paper, will be deducted a letter grade per day it is late (including weekends). After the third day, I will not accept the late assignment or late assignments.

All work this semester must be submitted in Arial, 12 point font and in either a word doc., word docx., or a pdf file. All work for this class should be submitted to the appropriate drop box in eLearn. It is the student's responsibility to make sure that work is submitted properly. Work submitted to the wrong drop box will be recorded as non-submitted. Also, missing work due to a student inaccurately submitting work will be recorded as non-submitted. Due dates for assignment are in the Calendar in eLearn. Furthermore, any assignment produced by or with AI software (i.e. ChatGPT) will not be accepted for a grade.

Testing Procedures

Tests and quizzes may be administered online through the eLearn format. Students should familiarize themselves with the Quizzes tab in eLearn. Midterm and final exams will be taken the day there are assigned, and no make-up exam will be given.

Evaluation Process

Errors on corrected papers will be marked using Grademark in Turnitin. Students must submit work to eLearn in a format that is readable by the platform. I will only accept work that is submitted in word doc., docx., or pdf. and in Arial, 12 point font. It is the student's responsibility to make sure each submitted assignment is in a readable format. Documents that are submitted to eLearn in an unreadable format are considered late until they are properly submitted. NOTE: Every Walters State student has access to every computer lab on any campus whenever there is not class scheduled in the lab. Access to the correct format is assured by utilizing these labs. Students are responsible for checking due dates for assignments, confirming that assignments have been successfully submitted, and reading instructor feedback. All written work will be submitted to Turnitin.com, a plagiarism detection site, to check for undocumented source material and duplication of past or present students' work before it is graded. In the event of a grade dispute, it is the student's responsibility to provide documentation of course work. Any assignment that is produced with or by AI software (i.e. ChatGPT) will not be accepted for a grade.

Work Return Procedure

Submitted student work will be sent back to the student, after grading, utilizing the feedback function of the drop box in eLearn. Students will be able to view graded material from the appropriate drop box. It is the students' responsibility to inform the instructor if they cannot find the graded work.

Communication

Students and the professor will contact each other through eLearn. All emails sent Monday through Friday will be responded to within 48 hours. If an email is sent on the weekend, the email will be responded to by Monday afternoon.

For this course, the professor will email the class three times a week at least. The weeks that assignments are due, there will be even more emails. The emails will provide instruction, insight, and additional information about coursework.

Finally

American Literature 1 is a more in depth examination of literature than you had in Composition 2. I like teaching this course because I enjoy the students' approach to great works of literature. Though I have read the works that will we read many times before, I always learn something new, and that is because of student interaction.

There will be a lot of communication that will take place in this course between classroom discussions and oral presentations. I expect all students to contribute to class discussions every time we meet. Unlike Composition 2, it will not be enough to simply say "I like what we read," or "I did not like we read." Come to class and be prepared to discuss why a work was engaging or not. Be sure to complete each assigned reading before the start of class.

In American Literature 1, we will discuss, understand, and incorporate literary criticism. Part of the classroom discussion will rely on you making a connection between literary work and the literary criticism you are being introduced to. Take the time this semester to familiarize yourself with different critical theories.

This class will require a lot of discussion, both in the virtual classroom and online, comments that are considered by me inappropriate or "out of bounds" will receive a grade of a zero for the first time. If inappropriate language continues, student(s) will be reported to the dean of student affairs, and will not be allowed to return until the dean gives consent.

The work that will be required for this class will be very difficult, but it can be done. Successful students are ones who come to class (online) every week, follow the instructions, and possess an open mind and a positive attitude.

While I will challenge you during this course, I will not disrespect you. I am here to help you. There are no such things as stupid questions. I look forward to all the good work you will do this semester.
